Located in an ancient

Borgo, in a beautiful rural setting, this beautiful villa in Siena is a 16th century castle built on the ruins of a 12th century castle. It still belongs to the same family who originally built it, one of the most ancient in Siena.

The evocative castle is situated on a hill near Radicondoli in the Sienese countryside with breathtaking views of the plain below. The huge estate is cultivated with vineyards, olive groves and woodland. The castle itself has a unique atmosphere of the past with its antique furniture, beds with testers and old portraits in the walls.

The character of this very special property makes it a totally unique experience for a holiday. The resident caretaker lives in an independent apartment and farm workers live in the borgo.
